

BIG FEELINGS

The title 'BIG FEELINGS' is written in a large, dark teal, rounded font. Each letter is decorated with small, colorful illustrations: a red flower on top of the 'I', a purple flower on the 'B', orange horns on the 'F', a yellow triangle with a red line on the 'E', a purple feather on the 'L', a red and black striped caterpillar on the 'I', and a purple caterpillar on the 'S'.

Inspector Lunie Tunes:

and the case of Sprocket Kane

Inspector Looney Tunes is the name. Hello!
While I love My Human, I want you to know

we go on long walks and they feed me each day but I'm sometimes lonely when they go away.

I've got a big heart and a curious mind.
So it hurts my feelings when I wake to find

they left with a kiss saying, "I'll be back soon" and don't return home until late afternoon.

They give me a hug and I check out their clothes to find another dog's fur caught by my nose.

Who is this stinkin' pooch that they have just seen?
How can I be sure if he's friendly or mean?

I also smell the human pups they care for.
The few clues I have just leave me wanting more.

I follow My Human the very next day.
Oh, what a treat! The family asks me to stay!

They welcome me into their home and I find there's more room to play and the playmates are kind.

The strange, other dog I built up in my head?
His name's Sprocket! He lets me sleep in his bed.

He shares his best snacks and his yard and his toys.
Even the sweet love of two curly haired boys.

The Kanes invite me back! They're really the best.
I solved the mystery and now I can rest.

is a second grader with a first rate heart.

She stops to the smell flowers
and wonders at the art.

Sophella Ellabella

truly believes that she's stellar,
that she's strong as any fella,
and a darn good storyteller.

Sophella Ellabella

embraces what she feels over what others try to tell her.

Without her ukulele
she will still sing acapella.

In unexpected rain
she doesn't wish for her umbrella.

She celebrates herself
to teach kids they can too.

There's nothing
